

Product Testing

Where critical design features are identified, Glenelg has the ability to assess performance criteria through use of its workshop facilities and testing equipment.

FEA (Finite Element Analysis) can be used to assess the theoretical structural qualities of a design, and the predicted performance of the product.

